PREFACE.

Having traveled a number of years on the road and realizing the need of a book of special routes, as well as a classification of the various business people throughout this country and Canada, we confidently submit this work with the assurance that for an immediate knowledge of traveling to and from one important town to the other, at the same time forming a definite knowledge of the business capacity of each town, this book will be found of incalculable benefit. It will save time, trouble and expense.

The maps are not confused by irrelevant matter which the mercantile community are confronted with in the ordinary map or railroad guide. This work comprises fifty maps; ten of these being long-distance routes, the balance being devoted to the various States and the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. In addition to these maps, and corresponding with towns upon said maps, are seventy-two pages of mercantile tables, showing the number of the principal businesses in 1,800 cities and towns. We have aimed to give every town of 2,500 population and over, in some cases we went below this number, taking commercial importance in preference to population. Upon each map is engraved from twenty-five to seventy-five cities and towns, varying according to size of State. The towns are geographically correct, the railroad lines connecting them being well defined and as straight as possible, so as to convey a clear and concise idea of their location.

Between each town will be found the distance and rate of fare plainly engraved upon the map; the population of every town can be readily obtained by consulting the tables of each State. Immediately following these tables and corresponding with them will be found a full and complete list of the best hotels (with rates) in each town shown upon the map or printed upon the table of any particular State.

A glance is all-sufficient to procure a conclusive idea of the importance of each and every town, its business facilities, the most convenient and direct way to reach one town from the other, the expense of the journey, length of the trip, name of best hotel with cost per day for accommodation.

No other single volume published contains the same valuable mercantile information. The cost of a thorough canvass through any particular State, with the chances of success, can be almost definitely figured up before the trip is undertaken.

The long-distance routes are for the benefit of the traveler who desires to visit larger towns, and do more of a wholesale business, rather than make a close canvass of any particular State. The ordinary railroad folder, which is so frequently consulted, is rarely correct, simply from business principles: i. e., railroad corporations do not propose to advertise other lines, therefore often leaving out prominent towns existing upon opposition roads. If the best maps extant be consulted, such as show cities, towns, counties, etc., then the traveler is confronted with a conglomeration of matter entirely foreign to that which he seeks.

The time alone saved is worth a hundred fold the cost of the book. The towns engraved upon these maps are such as the majority of travelers will find it to their interest to stop at. Not alone do the maps give complete State connections, but also illustrate how connections can be made with adjoining States, enabling anyone, whether an experienced traveler or not, to thoroughly canvass a State with the same ease and accuracy as one thoroughly acquainted.

In reference to the numeral classification of the various businesses, we claim that it is a much better guide to the amount of business that can be done, than the enumeration of names, which would take up considerable more space. Commercial travelers, canvassers, merchants, and others, knowing the number of firms engaged in their line of business in a certain town, can invariably tell whether it will pay them to stop over or not.

This work can be used with excellent advantage by the business world generally; also, the occasional tourist will find it a complete route book of the United States and Canada.

EXPLANATIONS.

Heavy lines upon the maps indicate the direct route.

Dotted lines show connections can be made outside of regular route.

Fine lines with figures between indicate fare only.

Heavy figures between towns with $ or ct. mark attached indicate the fare.

Light figures between towns show the distance.

If a town name appears upon the map, and cannot be found in the table of businesses connected with the State, it is then understood to be a junction point only.

Where a junction point occurs between two towns upon a main line, two distance figures occur; from first town to junction, and from junction to second town. To obtain the entire distance in such cases simply add the two or three figures (as may occur) together.

Upon each State map will be found from 25 to 75 towns; the businesses of the towns will be found in table next in position to map consulted. Hotel accommodation will be found next in order following business tables.

Outside of cities the businesses have been enumerated rather than the merchant; i. e., If we found a dealer to keep in stock Boots and Shoes and Dry Goods, we give credit to one each. If we find a merchant keeping Stationery and Drugs, we record one Stationer and one Druggist. So in all cases where the businesses have been foreign to one another, even though conducted by the one firm, we have given separate credits.

We do not record manufacturers unless they are also retailers.

We record Wholesale Grocers, Druggists, and Harness dealers, in combination with retailers in the same line.

We believe this book to be as nearly perfect as it is possible to make a work of this class. While corrections are made until the last form goes to press, so numerous are the changes continually going on in all parts of the country that by the time it reaches the hands of the public it must necessarily contain some inaccuracies. You will confer a favor by calling our attention to any which may come beneath your notice.

Texas	Weatherford to Cisco, 84 miles instead of 34.

Railroad fares in Michigan, according to a recent act, should be two cents per mile. Only one road, vis., C. & G. T., complies, others contesting. The fares given in this Guide are previous to the act.

Towns between which no connection appears, such as Bennington, Vt., to Brattleboro, Vt., are, as a rule, connected by stage line.

We have endeavored to give both fare and distance between towns, but in some cases, towns being too close together upon the maps, distance only appears. In such cases an average of three and one-half cents per mile will convey a close estimate of expense.

Where fare or distance are lacking between towns near the border of any particular State, the same may be found by consulting map of adjoining State.
